

FIFA WOMEN'S WORLD CUP

1991-2019

All through the 8 tournaments of the women's FIFA world cup that ran between 1991 to 2019 every four years, there has been, 4 champions where some repetitively carried the cup. This report reveals what these teams are doing differently.

8

Tournaments

4

Champions

36

Team countries

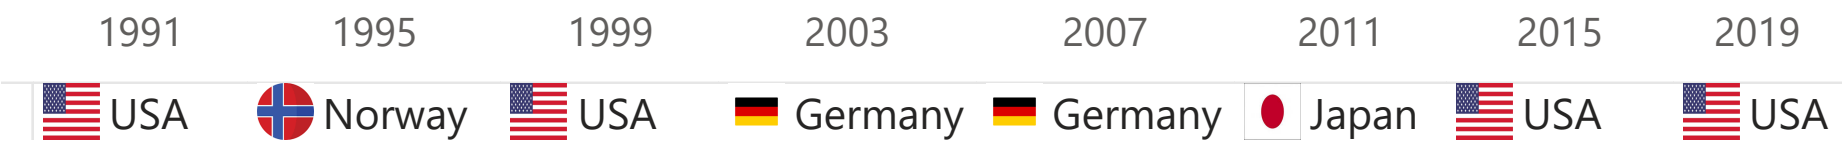

883

Goals

421

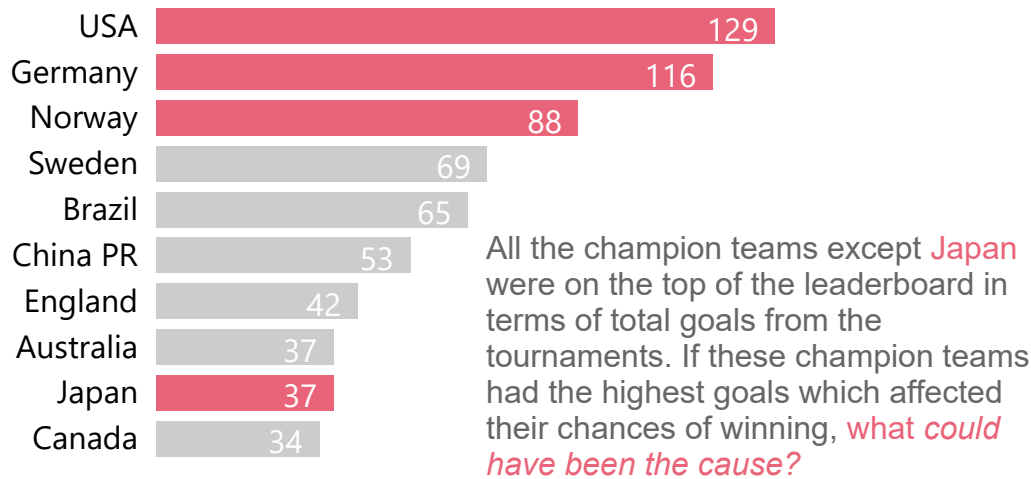

Assists

Champions

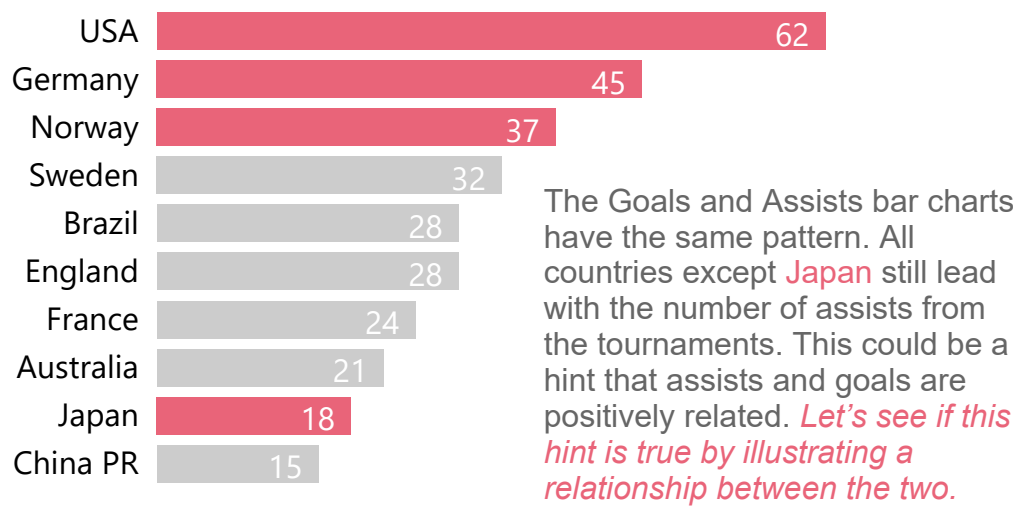

USA, Norway, Germany, and Japan were the four countries that won the FIFA world cup 4, 1, 2, and 1 time respectively. Let's go down to examine their goals and see if their number of goals has an effect on their wins.

Goals

Assists

Asides from the year, 2011, there's a direct relationship between assists and goals. This confirms our hint that countries with high assists are most likely to score high goals which most likely turns them into champions in the tournaments. Assists is a metric used to measure team work.

Recommendations

Team coaches should instils team spirit in his/her players by carrying out the following activities:

Players should undergo drill exercises where they have to rely on each other to scale through.

Set measurable goals for teamwork like keeping track of the goals that had assists.

The coach should understand the strengths and weaknesses of players and put them in strategic positions where one player's strengths complement the weakness of the other player beside her. This will make it easier for teamwork to reflect on the team.

At the end of the training match, the coach should go the extra mile in calling out specific actions exhibited by some players that expressed teamspirit, this will make players more team spirit conscious during the game.

Engage the players in team-building activities.

Make every player feel heard and seen.